Almost the entire world will celebrate Armistice Day today—the twelfth anniversary of the conclusion of one of the world's biggest wars.

Do you remember 12 years ago today? When the streets rang with rejoicing? Thousands of persons, mad with joy, paraded up and down the avenues and by-ways, celebrating the conclusion of the war.

Millions of armed men laid down their arms for a breathing spell. The steady roar of cannons and machine-guns, and the falling of men as steadily as the clock ticked had ceased. A vanquished Germany army retreated toward the Rhine.

But in millions of homes that day there was no rejoicing—instead, there was mourning. For from these homes some youth, just in the cream of life, with all that the world holds before him, had gone out into the Great Adventure—and would never return again. The war was over to them months, even years before.

War is a terrible thing—a barbarian method used by our civilization to solve our quarrels. The world has always hoped that there will never be another war. Some saw the last war as a war that would end all wars. Perhaps it was.

But as long as one nation regards another as unfriendly—and as long as there is no international friendship and understanding—there will be war.

Not so many years ago Armistice Day was celebrated at the Greek Theater in Berkeley. Here hundreds of armed men—soldiers, sailors—guardsmen—gathered to hear talks.

One speaker arose and made a passionate plea for peace. "Let's take all the guns, the cannons, the bombs, the poison gas away from every nation—and there won't be any more wars."

When he had finished his talk, a famous general, wearing the ribbons of many campaigns—some now forgotten—wearing medals of honor, foreign decorations and citations, arose and stood silent for a moment.

"Gentlemen," he said, you, who have followed the profession of arms... the oldest profession in the world... want peace more than any civilian wants it. Some of you have seen your comrades—your buddies... die. You have realized what war means. But, gentlemen, war will never be ended by disarmament—war will never be ended by taking away arms and munitions from the world—for in caveman days there were no guns, no bullets, no swords—yet they had their wars and fought them with stones, clubs and fists.

"There is only one way to end war—and that is by common understanding of the nations. Friendship—peace—justice."

FLIER SETS
NEW RECORD

FRANCE FIELD, Colon, C. Z., Nov. 10.—UP—Another thrilling achievement in aviation was completed by an American flier today, when Roy W. Ammel, Chicago businessman, arrived at the end of a non-stop solo flight from New York.

Ammel, buffeted by storms most of the way across the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean Sea, set down his low-winged Lockheed explorer monoplane at France field at 2:45 p. m.

He had been expected some hours before, and a large crowd grew anxious as the hours passed and no sight of Ammel was reported.

He appeared over the field shortly after 2:30 p. m. and a great shout went up. The citizens of the canal zone, "air minded" as a result of frequent stops by distance fliers at France Field, got one of the biggest thrills they had had since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's similar flight two years ago.

Ammel made the non-stop flight in 24 hours and 35 minutes, covering the more than 2,000 miles in good time considering the storms.

He left Floyd Bennett Airport, New York, at 2:10 p. m. yesterday flying southward to Florida, and thence across the long water hop to Colon.

He had been expected at France Field before noon.

He then made a motion for the erection of the new signs, which was adopted by a unanimous vote.

DETROIT, Nov. 10.—UP—An unemployed factory worker, William Jones, 50, died tonight of a beating, two hours after he had walked into a police station and announced he had "killed Jerry Buckley."

Jones, father of five children, was "intoxicated, Patrolman John Norris said, when he 'surrendered' and was taken to a cell, said by police to have been occupied by two other unnamed inmates.

The man was too drunk to be booked, police said, but apparently was unhurt when incarcerated.

When taken to a hospital two hours later his skull was fractured, his jaw broken, and a huge cut extended across his face.

Jones died without regaining consciousness. Under orders of police commissioner Thomas Wilcox, all information regarding the case was denied.

Two sons of Jones identified their father. They said they did not believe it possible he could have any connection with the murder last July of Buckley, a radio announcer. They added he might have gone to the station while intoxicated with the idea of gaining publicity.

POLICE BALKED IN HUNT FOR TRAIN BANDITS

With all traces of the five bandits who held up the Southern Pacific train near here last Friday morning gone, police confessed last night that they had almost exhausted every clue.

Finger prints, taken off the stolen automobile that the five men used in the $60,000 holdup, are being carefully examined by Clarence Morrill, chief of the bureau of criminal investigation at Sacramento, in hopes that they might be identified.

No traces have been found of Joe Spahey, Marysville restaurant owner, who was kidnapped by three men Saturday night and forced to drive them away. Police are of the opinion that the three men were members of the bandit gang.

United States postal authorities have denied the rumor that a man had been arrested and implicated in the holdup.

Belief was expressed that the bandits are hiding in the bay region, and as a result an appeal was broadcast to residents of the bay region to report to authorities the presence of any new residents.

Police have abandoned one kidnapping theory in connection with the escape Mrs. George Heide, 1510 Russell street, Berkeley, had reported Sunday that she had seen a youth answering to the description of one of the bandits, leap into a car of an unidentified Berkeley motorist and force him to drive toward the hills. No further report was made to police.

ODD FELLOWS NINE WINS CONTEST

After a thrilling give and take affair, the Richmond Odd Fellows nine finally triumphed over the Oakland Firemen by a score of 11 to 10 Sunday afternoon.

Hitting was in order last weekend in the I. O. O. F. Oakland Firemen clash. The five fighters nicked Peacock for 13 hits, while Jones allowed the batters a total of 16 bingles. The sluggers of neither team were able to pop the sphere over the boundary, but Gualdoni succeeded in bouncing out two three baggers, while hits of the same variety were garnered by Banducci, Kyle, Peacock and Rose. Pinto and Kyle both banged out two-base hits, and Emeidi, Smith and Byrnes all of Oakland, earned one two-bagger each apiece.

Football Up To U. C. Students, Sproul Says

BERKELEY, Nov. 10.—UP—The task of building up a University of California football team that will wipe out the sting of a 74 to 0 beating from University of Southern California last Saturday was delegated to students of the college today.

"I am in complete agreement with the students in their belief that the football team is their team and that all problems connected solely with its playing ability are theirs to solve," Dr. Robert G. Sproul, president of the university, said.

An editorial in the Daily California, student publication, asked: "Should we begin subsidizing in an effort to regain our pinnacle position or should we go after those who now subsidize?"

"As a matter of fact who does subsidize? Who can find out who does subsidize? And, having found out, who has the spirit and courage to say so in open meeting?"

"Has California been such a good sport and highprincipled collector, that her representatives have taken a defeatist attitude toward the possibility of cleaning up other colleges?"

"Is California herself afraid to call a spade a spade because of the danger of forcing 'professional' teams off of a profitable schedule?" These were only a few of the interrogations contained in the editorial and no attempt was made by the writer to answer any of them.

A strong last quarter offensive earned a 24 to 19 victory for the McCracken quintet over the Studebakers last night in another closely contested City league game.

The Mastercraft Roofers triumphed over the Ben Malik Clothiers by a score of 35 to 23 in the B division game.

The scoring between the Studebakers and McCracken athletes remained on a fairly even basis throughout the first half, with the score 12 to 10 in favor of the Studebakers at half time. McCracken's then made a fast, tricky attack that put them in the lead of 16 to 13 score by the end of the third quarter.

At the third quarter opened, Buny Muth of the Studebakers sank a pretty shot to put the Studebakers within one point of their opponents. However, the Garfinkle cagers again went on a rampage.

Barbieri placed one in the Studebaker net, with Flynn following with a pretty hole shot. Hall continued the rout with another bucket.

There the McCracken offensive ended. Paasch sank a long one for the Studebakers; Bertone followed with a successful four shot. Cornell ended the scoring with another foul shot. The Studebakers battered in vain at the impregnable McCracken defense during a hot last minute.

Both squads played a clever

LEGION ELEVEN WILL PLAY AT MONTEREY

The gridgers of the Richmond American Legion will tangle with the Monterey Legion athletes at Monterey today greatly cheered by their 12 to 2 victory over the Utopia eleven of San Francisco Sunday afternoon.

A high standard of reserve material was displayed by the Richmond team in Sunday's contest. The entire squad saw action, and the visiting players were easily held during almost the entire contest. Richmond could probably have made its victory more decisive, but Coach Claude Saraples was saving his men for today's big test.

A line plunge from the four-yard line by Clark and a 30-yard run by Clark after intercepting a Utopia pass accounted for Richmond's two touchdowns. The Utopians earned their two points when a Richmond player intercepted a Utopia pass on his own three yard line and was thrown back over his own goal line.

The entire team displayed an unstoppable drive in Sunday's contest, and displayed a wide superiority over the San Francisco clubmen. Clark played an outstanding game for Richmond. The entire backfield worked well together, while the line offered a fine defense against the charging of the visiting Utopians.

Today's game will be a feature of the Monterey American Legion's Armistice Day celebration and a large caravan of Richmond supporters are expected to travel to the peninsula city today to see their team in action against the well-known Monterey outfit.

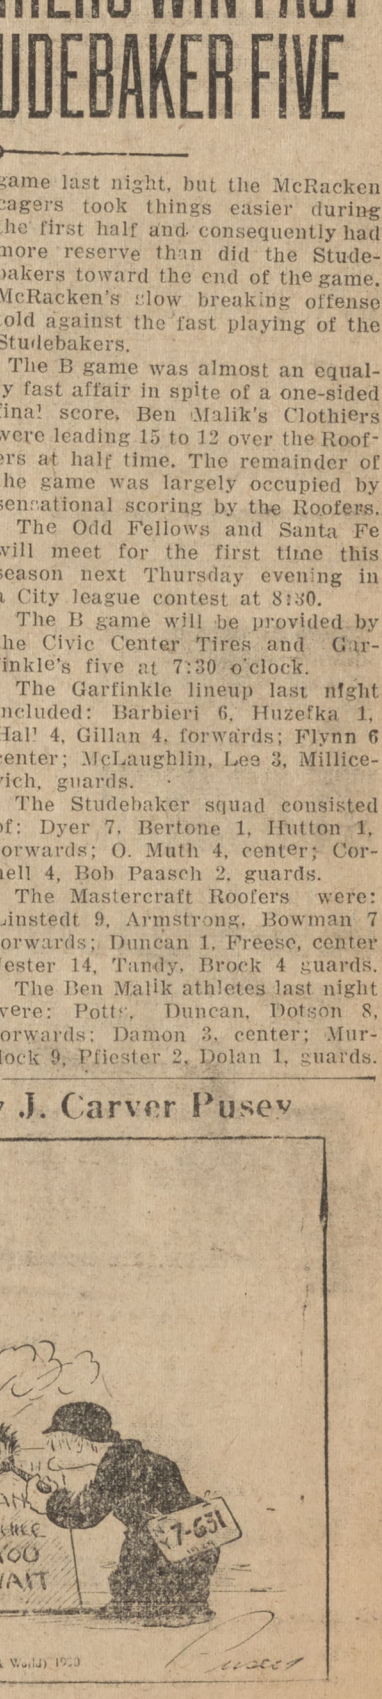

Monterey boasts an experienced and clever American Legion eleven, which, according to reports from that city, should offer the local warriors plenty of trouble this afternoon. However, the Richmond Legionnaires have shown an aggressive, consistent quality this season, and may be expected to meet the Monterey athletes on even terms.

Player Injured In Football Game

Old Furniture Exhibit Opens In Chicago

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—UP—Some $1,500,000 worth of furniture, including some of the most valuable worn holes in existence, went on display tonight at the annual Chicago antiques exhibit.

The management served tea, but asked the guests not to sit in the chairs. The antique lovers trod reverently about a $125,000 Persian rug, but not on it. They saw a smoking set once used by King Charles of Sweden, but it was not for their cigarette ashes.

They watched time pass on a $10,000 early American grandfather clock, but they dared not touch it, even though it was ten minutes slow. They looked at wall paper carefully peeled from the walls of old French castles, but guards were handy to see that they didn't leave thumb prints on it.

The exhibition will continue for one week. Admission is one dollar and that includes tea and even cakes, if the guests are careful not to sprinkle crumbs on the antique tapestries, the Queen Anne lounges and the Hepplewhite sofas.

SCHOOL HEAD TALKS AT MEET

Public school teachers lose more days from their work due to ill health than members of any other profession.

That was the statement of Vierling Kersey, director of state public instruction to approximately 75 members of the educational profession last night when they gathered in Clayton Valley school at the foot of Mt. Diablo for the monthly meeting of Contra Costa county principals group.

In a comprehensive talk Kersey covered the elementary school and pointed out many of the problems met by the organization. He spoke from the student's, the teacher's and the school's standpoint.

The objectives of the elementary school said Kersey, was first, to develop character in the child, second to create urges to study, work and do other things useful in the service of the community, and third, to teach the fundamental relationship of one child to another.

In speaking of the elementary teacher Kersey said she was a person who is developing new vision constantly, due to the organization of the work performed by this public service. The new material received from the many text books is also making this person a more competent teacher. Personality is the biggest factor in the importance of the teacher, Kersey said.

Tells of Work
The head of the state school system did not forget to mention the aggravations experienced by the elementary teacher. He enumerated them in the following order, first, the detailed clerical work she must perform; second, the aggravation that comes from the misplaced child, which is a student who is above or below the mental average of the class; third, overcrowding in the classroom, which is particularly evident in some of the smaller and poorer districts of the state; fourth, lack of proper equipment, which is also a condition found in the smaller communities; fifth, the aggravation that comes from improper supervision from the principals and the school boards of certain communities; sixth, out of date course of study, particularly when the teacher is fresh from a school that has just given the latest known methods of instruction, and last the poor health that comes from long and tedious hours in the classroom.

It was during Kersey's talk on the last point that he said public school teachers lose more days from their work than the average member of any other profession. Kersey was highly applauded for his message which indicated his understanding of the position in which the teacher is placed. Plans for the next monthly meeting were not made known last night, but it is expected as profitable a meeting will be had when all arrangements are completed.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 10.—UP—George W. F. Hunt, Democratic governor-elect of Arizona, was reported recovering tonight from a serious recurrence of an old digestive ailment.

The six-term governor was kept in seclusion and all visitors will be denied him for a week, physicians said. Hunt is 71.

He was stricken last Wednesday, the day after he was elected governor for a seventh term, and relatives were concerned over his recovery it was learned.

He was taken to Agua Caliente, Ariz., Hot Springs, where he responded to treatment, and was returned here yesterday. The condition of his heart was the chief concern of physicians, although they said tonight that Hunt apparently had weathered the attack.

EL CERRITO ORDINANCE PLAN DISCUSSED AT COUNCIL MEET

Preliminary public hearing to discuss a tentative zoning ordinance will be held in the city hall of El Cerrito Tuesday evening December 9, according to the report of City Planning Expert Dr. C. Aronovici to council of El Cerrito at its meeting Monday night.

Dr. Aronovici made an outline of his plan providing for four zones; one for single dwellings with lots containing a minimum of 5000 square feet; two, apartment houses of less than two stories; bungalow courts and duplex houses; three, business district and apartments over two stories and four, industrial.

It is also proposed to make the business zone a fire district providing the buildings must be made of fire resisting materials.

Dr. Aronovici will submit the zoning ordinance and map to the council at its meeting December 8. Action on the audit of the books of Former Police Judge W. A. Hinds was taken by the council of El Cerrito Monday night after a delay of about two years by accepting the report of J. O. Ford which showed Hinds indebted to the city for the sum of $5.00.

The other report which was up for consideration was made by Miss Moses and showed approximately $700 unaccounted for.

On the recommendation of Councilman Phil A. Lee the council instructed City Clerk Mrs. Alice Walker to write the joint pole committee for permission to install safety signals on the poles on San Pablo avenue and Fairmont and Potrero avenues.

Petition protesting the improvement of Stockton avenue between San Pablo avenue and Terrace Drive on account of business conditions was referred to Councilman Peter Larsen and Phil A. Lee who will interview the property owners.

Refusal of Mayor J. R. Beck to allow X. Meny to talk on the question as it had been disposed caused a verbal barrage from Meny and Charles G. Kaufman, but was silenced by Mayor Beck when he ordered them from the hall unless they stopped talking.

On a motion of Councilman Peter Larsen the council instructed City Clerk Mrs. Alice Walker to notify City Engineer Ross L. Calfee to render bills for his services every thirty days.

Larsen stated that money was owed Calfee on several small jobs and if they came in all together would make the amount look very large.

Final reading and passage of an ordinance providing compensation for the volunteer fire department members was voted by the council of El Cerrito at its meeting Monday night.

The ordinance provides pay for ten regular members on the following basis: For each alarm where water is played on the fire $2.50, for all other alarms $1.50 and each drill $1.00 not to exceed two drills a month.

The ordinance will go into effect in thirty days.

Repairing and renovating the city jail brought before the council by Police Commissioner Hans M. Nissen was laid over for one week.

Request of an Oakland firm to solicit orders for merchandise in El Cerrito was denied by the council on a motion of Councilman Phil A. Lee.

Wheat Hits New Low On Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—UP—Grain prices dropped today almost to the levels of the "Gay Nineties," when bread was a nickel for an oversized loaf and "dollar wheat" merely was an optimistic dream.

All wheat deliveries on the Chicago Board of Trade, world's biggest grain mart, tumbled to consecutive low levels. December old contract wheat sold for 69 3/8 cents per bushel, the lowest price since 1902.

Rye sold at 1898 levels, oats prices were nearly as low while corn also sold off in sympathy with the general bearish attitude. The sustaining price influence in the corn pit was the government crop report which was made public after the close of trade. The report, incidentally, was slightly more bearish than had been expected.

In Minneapolis, December wheat futures closed at 66 1/2 cents per bushel, the lowest price in 25 years. Other midwestern grain markets reported similar bottom prices.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 10.—UP—Four tanks containing lubricating oil were destroyed in a spectacular fire at the Texas Oil company's storage plant here today. Damage was estimated at $1,000. Striking it against a side of the tank, the globe broke, causing the gasoline vapor to explode.

What to Preserve and What to Throw Away

T O THOUSANDS of American women these golden October days mean not only soft suns, sunlight that warms without burning, flamingo-winged aunts,

But two important, arduous, yet—on the whole—interesting jobs. The job of fall preserving. And the job of fall housecleaning. Don't let anybody tell you that either feminine pursuit is out of date. Even in and around New York, from the suburban kitchen or the apartment kitchenette, are waited all the perfumes of (domestic) Arabia—That is to say, the sweet and spicy savors of green tomato pickle, Of quinces—preserved-with-molasses, Of grape jelly, Of orange marmalade, Of cranberry jelly, Of piccalilli—And plenty of other delectable condiments and preserves Which can be bought, but which almost every housewife likes, in season—prepare for herself—

Since "John says there's nothing like my quince jam," And "the children eat my grape jelly on their bread all winter." Really, preserving food is much more fun than many a domestic process—It is definitely a creative achievement Which can give a woman a thrill, as she looks at the long shelf, Filled with glasses and jars of ruby and purple and gold, all neatly sealed and labeled; Furthermore, a woman's homemade preserves often win her outspoken praise From a family altogether too much inclined to take Mother and her work as a matter of course. Instead of a matter for congratulation.

Then, there's the other autumnal labor of every good housekeeper—The semi-annual bout of housecleaning. Innumerable women still read with an eye of distrustful skepticism The articles and books in which the professional domestic scientist Explains that if you use the vacuum cleaner and devote one day every week To the thorough cleaning of one or two rooms, You need not tear everything to pieces, twice a year, to "clean house."

"That's all very well," says the good housekeeper, "But when I'm away all summer I can't use the vacuum cleaner. And give each of my rooms a thorough turn-out every week. Everything gets so dusty—All the windows have to be washed—And, if you don't believe the paint needs wiping, you should look at the damp cloths with which I go over it—"

"My house gets a house-cleaning every October, no matter what the people who write books about housekeeping say." So she cleans woodwork and all other paint. She washes curtains and blankets, she polishes windows, She sends the rugs to be dry-cleaned, and probably has at least one floor refinished. She polishes all the silver, including the wedding presents, And takes down every dish in the china closet in the butler's pantry, for washing—

How dishes, shut up in a tightly-closed closet, can get so gray with dust. Is something nobody believes, who never cleans house. Also, she has a thoroughly satisfactory time Sorting out rubbish, which the children and her husband accumulate. And—if necessary—over these dead bodies—throwing the junk away. Or burning it up.

Or sending it to a rummage sale. Home work for women, just now, is really a combination of construction and destruction—By preserving fruits and vegetables, the housewife builds up her food supply. By weeding out and throwing out waste products, she makes a clean sweep of dirt and disorder. And she is from us to give her any advice about either job. Which, in most American homes, she performs with skill and dispatch—But can't she carry a step farther the fall preserving and the fall housecleaning? This is a good time not only to preserve quinces and grapes. But to resolve to save everything that is sweet and spicy in home life—That cheerfulness at the breakfast table, which starts the day right For Father, going to the office, and the children, hurrying off to school; That careful budgeting of a homemaker's time, as well as money. In a fashion which enables her to perform all her necessary tasks, without getting tangled up in them.

And without getting so tired and nervous that the whole family suffers—It can be done—every housewife knows. That there are days when things "go right."

It's the system back of such days that demands a special effort to preserve. Another home value worth preserving is the affectionate and intelligent interest with which a woman can listen To the children's tales of school, and their father's account of a hard day downtown. The humorous viewpoint toward domestic worries and difficulties. Is something which every woman who is rested and well after summer holidays Should make up her mind to preserve, during the hard winter that may lie ahead.

Unflagging energy, generous confidence, unflinching loyalty, The moral strength to say "no" when necessary. And the health and vigor to carry out all these resolves Should be preserved—as far as is humanly possible—by every good wife and mother.

Then, again, while she is cleaning house and clearing out accumulated rubbish—Why not at the same time throw out old anxieties and grudges? The fear that her husband won't "get on" as quickly as the man who lives next door.

The ranking memory of his "words" when she ordered a Chinese rug for the living room. The worried over the children's quarrels—

The pained remembrance that one of them once TOLD A LIE? To cherish and brood over and lose sleep over such matters May be as foolish as to keep a house cluttered with waste; Why leave rubbish in the corners of one's mental attic?

Why not give it a fall house-cleaning—make a clean sweep of "old, unhappy, far-off things"? Perhaps being a successful wife and mother, like being a successful housekeeper, Depends upon knowing what to preserve and what to throw away—and doing it!

Tales That Tables Tell

By Alma Zaiss

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

I F YOU are entertaining in the afternoon this fall and winter—and of course you are, for this pastime has become almost a national institution—you will not forget that the thoughtful American hostess recalls the preferences of individual guests and provides both tea and coffee for her table, so that there may be a choice for those who feel inclined to one or 't'other.

This is a recent custom that is finding great favor in our land. The native son seems more willing to defer to custom than in his harder pioneer days . . . but to please his personal taste still draws better than to try to bend him to conventional rule.

That double service can be very attractive, even when it is accomplished with simple, mixed appointments, is the message of the photograph where little glass cups are used with a silver teapot, sugar, and creamer at one end of the table; at the other end there is a full coffee service of gleaming pewter—cups and all—and tea plates are of quaint flowered china.

In planning the refreshments for afternoon tea it is also well to remember, if men are expected, that sandwiches may be small without being too bird-like; and cakes may be dainty without being merely a puff of wind. A rather nippy cheese combined with ground nuts makes an appetizing filling for white bread sliced very thin, spread with lemon butter and cut in diamonds proves a nice companion for the tray. Then in among the almond kisses why not include a few chocolate diamonds and slender though hearty date and nut bars? These two confections are delicious with either tea or coffee and are well known favorites among men.

It is of prime importance, of course, to keep both tea and coffee piping hot. The strength of tea varies greatly according to individual taste and is regulated by the addition of hot water or the dip of the tea ball . . . but woe unto the hostess who serves weak coffee! The time and the money demand that it be strong and fragrant and stimulating in that delightful sense we need at this hour. There should be lemon and sugar for those who like it in the teacup, and plenty of cream for both tea and coffee for those whose tastes are otherwise.

This may serve as an introduction to a little series of fall and winter afternoon tea, to be followed later by excursions into china land and the crystal palace, to the silvermen, if men are expected, that sandwiches may be small without being too bird-like; and cakes may be dainty without being merely a puff of wind. Transforming the Closet

N O HOME ever had too much closet space, but the day of the cluttered up, unsightly closet, however restricted its space, is past, for clothes closets have come in for quite the same consideration nowadays that any other part of a house, apartment or room receives. Even the humblest type may be made attractive—a real joy—for fashion has taken it up.

First of all, the closet is papered or painted, and as few of them, even in modern homes, have windows, a light paper or paint is advisable, green being the most popular color, and a small bright-colored flowery paper a close rival. Next, the space is apportioned, so much for hangers, so much for shelves, so much for drawers or open shelves and so on, according to necessity, but a place for everything. On a high shelf may be placed movable boxes of uniform size, neatly covered with paper or painted to match the walls, and provided with handles. Shelves are covered with oilcloth, its edges scalloped. A shelf or two provided with built-in slant shelves or with pastboard ones to which cloths have been tacked, makes an ideal place for shoes. Then there may be a shelf with stationary or movable hat stands; a section curtained, for handbags, etc., a rack on the door for ties and belts and linen shelves with a two-inch rail across them, if the closet is to serve a double purpose.

Hangers should be attractively covered, and for this there are many devices. They may be covered with a pulsed wadding, the wadding cut to fit and sewed underneath, where the edges should come together nicely. Then a tube made of silk or velvet to the length of the hanger, cut through the center, a section slipped over each side and the two edges sewed together with a bow or artificial flower to conceal the seam. If an exceedingly soft material is used as covering, the wadding is not essential.

If space is really at a premium in arranging the closet, it is a convenience to have one of the square window boxes that please.

WINDOW decorations are unusually interesting and diversified this fall, all in line with the homey atmosphere that is, or at any rate is supposed to be, creeping back into houses—or, if you please, apartments. Window boxes are a first thought—indoor or outdoor—and to give a new touch to the plain everyday wooden ones all to them half-inch cleats, lengthwise and about an inch apart. Then paint the boxes themselves one color, the cleats another and see if the effect isn't charming. Another way is to cover the front of the box with a flowered chintz and cross with two cleats one way and two, or perhaps three, the other. Still again, a gay colored oilcloth may be tacked across the box front and the sides also, if desired, then the cleats tacked on as above, in large diamond shapes or in triangles.

Plain wood flower boxes given an "antique" treatment and decorated with a colored print—one cut from a magazine answers the purpose very well providing its coloring blends well with the brownish tones and is not too loudly contrasting—then the whole varnish-d, make an exceedingly good looking window box.

One clever person who has a knack for doing ordinary things differently evolved a really delightful breakfast nook through the arrangement of her flower boxes. The boxes themselves are trough shaped, made so by nailing the box's at right angles to each other, then, of course, having the zinc linings made to fit. These then were swung from tripods, two trough boxes at each side, and, though it never would be suspected, the tripod made of gas piping found in a junk shop. The boxes were placed facing each other and at either side of a rectangular table with benches. And presto! the breakfast nook.

Wax Treated Windshields

A T one time window panes were nothing more than a transparent paper treated with wax, so that the rain as it hit the waxed paper slid right off. Using that principle, it has been suggested that before driving into the rain the windshield first be cleaned and then polished with wax. The water will run down in large, crystal-like drops which are not so troublesome and do not interfere so consistently with the driver's vision, as with a steady view of ordinary sized rain drops.

You and Your Child

Answering Questions

"T HAT child is so smart," mother says to father as she proceeds to tell him all the cute things Junior has said, and all the precocious questions he has asked during the day. But the day that Junior asks, "Where do babies come from?" mother isn't quite so delighted with his "smartness." "I didn't know what to say," mother says to father. "It was so embarrassing. Imagine a little tot like that asking such a question!"

But is there anything unusual about Junior's question? When a youngster asks, "Where does the rain come from?" or "Who made the moon?" nobody thinks these questions strange, but when he asks about the origin of human beings his parents are often astonished and disturbed.

It is natural curiosity that prompts the children's questions about sun, moon, stars, automobiles and babies. Isn't it perfectly natural that they should wonder and seek to know about everything in the world they live in? To them the question about their origin is no different from any other question. And it ought not to seem different to us. Let us try to look at things with their eyes. To do so we may have to take a sponge, metaphorically speaking, and wash our minds clean.

And then we shall be able to answer the children's "innocent" questions truthfully, simply and directly, just exactly as we answer all other questions. We shall not show them by a flush of the face or a droop of the eyelids that these questions are different from any others. We shall give them no more information, however, than they are seeking. When they have digested this they will come back for more.

"But why tell the little tots the 'truth'?" many parents ask. "Why not tell them fables of storks or doctors or 'buying babies'?" First of all, because sooner or later (sooner in most cases) the youngsters will get the facts from somewhere or other, and then they will know that their parents have lied to them. Are they apt to come to us again for information? I think not. They will decide that there are some things which one doesn't talk to one's parents about. Thus we shall lose their confidence!

Besides, are we willing to have our young ones pick up this information from the streets, perhaps getting a distorted and filthy picture? Isn't it better to instruct them ourselves in a clean, wholesome, fine way, so that their first impression of a subject that will play such a large role in their lives will be a true and healthy one? Oh, let us answer their questions honestly, once, so that their little minds have been poisoned!

Cleaning the Felt Hat

T HE light felt hats soil so easily, but they can also be cleaned easily.

Mix corn meal and salt in the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of corn meal to one teaspoonful of salt. Place the meal on a paper and thoroughly rub it all over the hat, using a brush. When the meal looks quite soiled, brush the hat well with a clean, stiff brush.

If the hat is very much soiled, gasoline may be added to the salt and corn meal mixture, or gasoline may be used alone to remove spots.

TELLING THE WORLD

(One of the treats of the autumn season is in store for our readers today. With football here with both cleats, we have secured the services of an outstanding expert to interpret the finer points of the gridiron game. Our expert is none other than J. Herman Seditz, famous old-time coach and player. Mr. Seditz was the star of the Sing Sing team of 1902. He played center, with a guard on each side of him. Seditz was at Sing Sing from 1902 to 1905. He would have played the entire four years only the Governor commuted his eligibility. The following year he played at both block and tackle for Chicago Pete's safe-moving squad. After graduation from Leavenworth in 1912, he served as a scout for Washington and Jefferson, as a general handy man for William and Mary and as a day coach for Baltimore & Ohio. His first article on inside football appears today. Others will follow from day to day, in that order.)

INSIDE FOOTBALL

By J. Herman Seditz

W HEN I took charge of football at Castor College, the team was using tenpenny nails as cleats. I looked over the budget and saw this was wrong. We could afford better equipment than tenpenny nails, so I went and bought some 20-cent nails. These were far more efficient in a hard fought game. With 20-cent nails sticking out of their soles, it was not long before our back field was known as the Meat Choppers.

We won all our games that year except the last one. That was with Armour Institute, and they held us to a scoreless tie by a dirty trick. When the Armour team came out on the gridiron they were wearing armor suits. This was too great an advantage against our 20-cent nails.

I protested, on the ground that Armour's colors were red and not nickel-plated. Their captain only laughed and defied me to send my team out on the gridiron. When the game was over, he said, our colors would be black and blue.

I sent the team in, figuring Armour would beat us. But rain saved the day. The game had hardly opened when it started to pour. In two minutes those armor suits were rusty, especially at the joints. The Armour boys creaked whenever they got started. In vain they begged their trainer to send them out a bucket of lubricating oil, but the filling stations had been closed by order of the City Council. They couldn't get a drop of anything, not even fuel oil. Between the halves I evolved some strategy to offset Armour's unfair advantage. I thought we would win sure. For when my boys lined up for the second half each of them was driving a second-hand flier.

THIS AND THAT

We just can't understand it. Here night football has been going on for five weeks now and a cheer leader hasn't yet demanded a spotlight.

The Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier

M ARY is one of the people who are "on their feet all day." She is employed in a department store, a small department store, where she shuttles from one end of a long counter to the other, selling three different varieties of merchandise. She is estimated at one time that she walks about ten miles a day. And yet she has "hips!"

Mystery indeed. Only the sedentary are expected to have "hips." But they can exercise them away by the practice of hip-reducing exercises night and morning. People like Mary cannot do this, as a rule. Their jobs call for sufficient bodily movement. And ten minutes of exercise in the morning is really extra work. As for the ten minutes at night, people "on their feet all day" just won't. Nor do we blame them.

But to get back to Mary and her "mystery." After much long pondering of her problem and a decision to advise lying down exercises for her—though we dislike having to suggest exercise to anybody whose round nothing else but a continuous round of exercise—we had Mary describe her walk. She said her carriage was not so good, but that the little steps she took for the little steps she took. There was the clue we were looking for.

Trotting and mincing are just so much waste motion. One might as well stand on a platform with little wheels, like a toy horse. Just observe some time how plump—especially in the region of the waist and

Care of Shoes

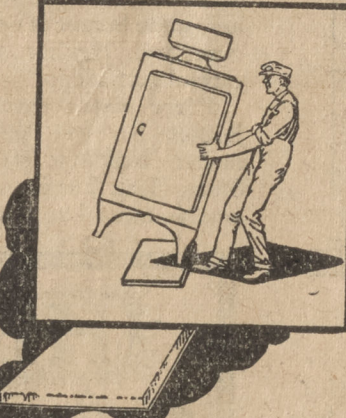

To secure satisfactory wear out of shoes they must have care. Frequent cleaning and polishing, as well as alternate wearing, will provide this care.

All shoes should be brushed after each wearing to remove dust. If they take a high polish this should be frequently given. They should be continually kept in a lustrous state. Cleaning powders, liquids and pastes are now obtainable for every type of shoe, so whether leather or fabric footwear is worn, whatever type of finish, there is a dressing tool that will restore the original condition.

These compounds will keep the leather soft, will cleanse fabric shoes and keep metallic leathers from tarnishing, which all tends to preserve the attractive appearance of the shoes and give satisfactory wear.

For the Heavy Moving

M Oving heavy articles of furniture over polished floors of wood, tile or linoleum is usually accomplished at the expense of dents and scratches in the surface, that are often permanent. Even boards, rugs and rubber-tired trucks will frequently mar the floor if they are moved over or with them. There seems only one way to move an article across a polished floor without scratching it and that way appears to have been discovered by accident.

It consists of taking a good quality of cocoa-fiber mat, of the thick door-mat variety, of turning the mat top side down on the floor, of placing the heavy article on the mat, and of backing across the floor, at the same time dragging the heavy article, mat and all, with you as you go.

Easy thing to do, but don't depend upon using the old doormat for that purpose; for, if you do, you will have scratches in the floor that will never get out. The mat has got to be perfectly free of sand and grit, one that has never been in use for any other purpose than that of moving heavy articles across a polished floor.

By spending a dollar for a new mat, the home mechanic can have one of the handiest moving devices known. A device that has been used on large, polished showroom floors with success for many years.

PLEDGES FOR CHEST HERE ASKED

If the Richmond Community Chest is to go over the top, there must be a larger number of installment pledges payable throughout the year instead of the small cash donations now being received.

This was the consensus of opinion at the report luncheon of workers yesterday at which W. W. Scott, general chairman, said a critical situation faces the Chest organization. He pointed out that about 50 percent of the money now promised is in hand in cash and said the prospects of the Chest would be brighter if the donors had pledged themselves to make quarterly payments instead of giving in cash.

It was pointed out that many donors who can give a certain amount at this time can give a similar amount at periods during the next twelve months and that they will do so if the matter is understood in that light.

At the report luncheon, additional contributions through the advance gifts section headed by Arthur C. Paris, brought that division's grand total up to $5450.50.

The down town divisions reported $372.95 from the district headed by George Thornton and $705.50 from the one headed by George E. Barnett, making a grand total to date of $7028.95 against the desired total of $24,000 which the workers sent out to raise a week ago.

The women's divisions are now in the field under the direction of Mrs. Earle E. Scofield, and will have their first report luncheon at the Hotel Carquinez in conjunction with the business divisions who will report again at that time. Excellent results are looked for from the women's work. Scott declared, but he said that the general standard of giving must be raised in other sections of the list if the quota is to be raised.

The central committee in charge of the advance gifts will meet next Monday for what is expected to be a final meeting. The women and other branches of the organization are expected to complete their work this week.

The American Trust company was yesterday added to the list of concerns in the 100 percent class, with all the officers and employees having given to the Chest.

Power Dam Blown Up With Dynamite

Authorities believed it was due to a feud between ranchers and the Pacific Gas and Electric company over impounding Hat creek.

"O Fairest Flower! No Sooner Blown but Blasted!"

GOOD MUSIC in our country has grown to a glorious blossoming. American orchestras, American musicians now rank with the finest in the world. Shall we continue to nurture and cherish this beautiful flower, or shall we let it dwindle and die under blighting Canned Music poured out by mechanical Robots?

Which do you prefer for the money you pay at the theatre box office? The stirring performance of Living Music played and felt by flesh-and-blood musicians, or a strident din from the throat of a piece of machinery? Shall it be glamor or clamor?

Millions of men and women who love real music are demanding that it shall not be blighted... demanding that they shall not be deprived of enjoyment to which they're entitled. These millions are giving force to their demands by enrolling in the Music Defense League. You can swell this chorus of protest by mailing this coupon today. Do it!

SIX INJURED IN CUBAN RIOTS

HAVANA, Nov. 10.—UP—Troops were called out to quell student riots at Santiago De Cuba, according to reports reaching here today.

Six persons were wounded in street fighting, the reports said, and five arrests were made.

The students were said to be demonstrating in protest against the attitude of the government toward students at the University of Havana.

Aid Asked

Santiago De Cuba is at the southern tip of Cuba, 475 miles south east of Havana. It is a city of over 50,000 persons.

The reports indicated feeling against the government was running high. The mayor, when other efforts to quiet the students failed, was declared to have appealed to the military.

This evening they were reported in control of the situation, but Santiago De Cuba was said to be restless as a result of the disturbance.

Students Strike

The students were declared to have incited government employees and shop keepers to participate in general demonstration against the government.

Order was restored after sharp fighting in the streets, the dispatches said. Heavy patrols guarded the streets against further outbreaks.

Students in Havana recently caused trouble when they demonstrated against the government of President Gerardo Machado. They went on strike and had numerous clashes with the police during parades in the capital, but the uprisings were put down.

School Week Is Observed Here

Richmond public schools will not participate extensively in American Education week now being observed in many classrooms throughout the country, W. T. Helms, superintendent of schools said yesterday.

Reason given by Helms for the city's light participation in the event was due to the nearness of the semester's end along with the many other public and semi-public events now confronting the teacher and the public alike.

Education week sponsored by the state will be extensively participated in by Richmond schools next spring, Helms explained. Experience has shown that the spring of the year is the time schools attract most attention from the public, it was said.

It was predicted that many of the elaborate programs now being prepared by bay schools for the public's benefit will not be as fully appreciated at this time of the year as they would be should the events transpire during the spring.

Ads Lauded By President Hoover

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—UP—Advertising has been a dynamic force in the establishment of the new and higher American standard of living, President Hoover told the association of national advertisers in a speech here tonight.

It has raised cottage industries into mass production and stirred the lethargy of the old law of supply and demand, he said.

Five Injured In High School Riots

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 10.—UP—A traditional football game between Marysville and Yuba City high schools, scheduled for this weekend was called off today because five students have been injured in free for all fights, while wood piles were being built for pre-game rallies.

Both schools were suspended from the California Interscholastic Federation.

PAN AMERICAN WINS OIL SUIT

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 10.—UP—The federal government today lost its suit to recover 660 acres of land in the United States naval oil reserve No. 1 in Kern county, California, which it claimed was obtained by E. L. Doheny through a fraudulent deal with former Secretary of the Interior Albert Fall.

The decision upheld the rights of the Pan-American Petroleum company to the land, Pan-American, formerly a Doheny organization, has since become a subsidiary of the Richfield Oil company.

As a result of the decision, handed down by Federal Judge Frank Norcross, of Nevada, after several months consideration, the Richfield Oil company is saved approximately $5,000,000.

Oil Valuable

The $5,000,000 represents the value of oil taken from the leases, which would have had to be repaid to the government. The leases are said to be worth $10,000,000 to the Richfield company.

Other leases in the same field were cancelled when the government brought civil suits against the Pan-American and Doheny groups. Millions of dollars were involved in the deals.

However, Judge Norcross held that the 660 acres involved in today's decision were not obtained by fraud since title was given by congress.

Old Case

The case went back to the Fall-Doheny-Harry Sinclair scandal of the Harding administration, which resulted in Fall's conviction of accepting a bribe from Doheny while Secretary of the Interior.

The case decided today was filed on September 3, 1924, by the attorney general when Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur wrote Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work that leases approved by Fall still remained in Kern county.

Lease Sold

The leases, listed as E, G and I, were:

G—Given by the government on February 8, 1922 to R. J. White and J. H. Coffin, who had a placer mine claim on the property in 1907, prior to the time it was withdrawn as a reserve in 1909. Eventually the lease was sold to the Doheny organization.

E and I—obtained by W. R. Ramsey, of the United Midway Oil company on November 23, 1921, later transferred to the Continental Petroleum company, and finally secured for $750,000 by Pan American.

Ramsey obtained the leases by paying the government a royalty of 55 percent of oil and gas. Later his company claimed the amount excessive and obtained a reduction to 50 percent.

Firemen Called To Free Tangled Dog

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 10.—The wringing of a fox terrier's tail resulted in the ringing of a fire alarm today.

Trixie, the terrier, got into difficulties in playing around the washing machine operated by its mistress, Mrs. William E. Stage. The dog's tail was caught and Mrs. Stage was unable to free the animal. In desperation she turned in a fire alarm.

The firemen took apart the washing machine and the story has a happy ending, although Trixie's tail is rather painful.

TRANS PACIFIC RADIO STATION IS PLANNED

Sites for two stations, the total investment of which will aggregate $1,000,000, and from which service across the Pacific ocean will be furnished, have just been purchased by Transpacific Commercial company Ltd.

The two stations at Dixon and Point Reyes, Cal., will have 640 acres and 540 acres respectively.

Erection of stations on these properties is expected to be started shortly after the first of next year, and service between the United States and Hawaii is scheduled for Jan. 1932. This is the first step in a plan to connect the United States with the Orient by radio network.

The project contemplates the eventual establishment of service to Japan, Australia, Philippine Islands, and Alaska. The transmitter to be established at Dixon will be similar to the trans-Atlantic set, which operates on a wave length between 14 and 45 meters. Other transmitters will be installed as new channels are opened.

The sending station is at Dixon while the receiving station is at Pt. Reyes. Equipment for both stations is now being constructed by Western Electric company and Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Mutual Telephone company of Hawaii will be connected with the radio channel to be set up in this system. This will consist of wire network on several of the islands to be linked to each other by a low power short wave radio telephone system, that is being extended to cover the entire archipelago.
